

Dana Roth

Immigration and Counterterrorism Analyst
DHS Liaison to the FBI International Terrorism Operations Section
Returned Peace Corps Volunteer, Senegal

Dana Roth, is currently a graduate student at American University's School of International Service where she is studying International Relations and Global Security.

Ms. Roth works at Homeland Security US Citizenship and Immigration Services as an interagency liaison to the FBI's International Terrorism Operations Section where she builds relationships and assists in information-sharing policies.

She previously served in the Peace Corps in Senegal from 2013-2015 as a Sustainable Agriculture Volunteer in the Sahel. The experience helped her realize her capacity for helping others and stimulated her passion for creating opportunities through community and communication. She maintains connections with the community in Senegal and the experience has shaped her motivations since.

Ms. Roth's passion for effective and compassionate communication to create safe global communities is her reason for pursuing a degree in international relations. Public diplomacy has been a core tenet in her career since the Peace Corps.
